CRIMSON CREW COULDN'T PULL HIGHER STROKE

Harvard Bulletin Says Would Be Impossible to Keep Crew Together.

The Harvard Alumni Bulletin explains the low stroke that Harvard maintained at New London when rowing against Yale on the ground that it was found impossible to keep the crew together at a higher stroke than was rowed. It is true, the Bul-letin says, that the stroke was at, or below thirty, most of the time, and also that the plan had been to row also that the plan had been to row considerably higher, with the hope that the Yale crew, in order to keep up with Harvard, would be forced above its natural and best pace and thus disorganized. But the Harvard captain and stroke oar found soon after the race began than it was practically impossible to keep the men together even at 32 or thereabouts, and consequently that the crew went much better at a slow stroke than at a high one. a high one.

"The fundamental trouble with the Harvard eight." says the Bulletin, "ay, it is believed, in the manner in which it was developed. The polcy for several years has been to teach the crew to row a very high stroke, thirty-five or thirty-six to the minute for the earlier races of the season, including the Cornell race which comes late in May, and the hin a period of three weeks or thereabouts, to change radically the kind of stroke rowed.

This method has been generally successful in the past seven or erally successful in the past seven or eight years, but it fafled this year either because the Harvard men did not wholly forget what they had been taught earlier in the season, or be-cause the Vale crew was faster than in other years, or as the result of a coincidence of both these causes."

FIELD DAY AT STATE HOSPITAL

In the early part of the season these two teams met and the Sachems gave the Hospital team has been greatly strengthened since, having practically a new team, including the best of New London as well as probably the best first baseman in the county, Jack Crowe. New York, July 1.—Special influences were again effective in keeping the stock market within a narrow and ir-regular groove today. Foreign and domestic news was the usual mixture of favorable and unfavorable happen

Hal Chase Has Affidavit of Thirty Pages to Show That He Was a Free

Buffalo N. Y., July 1.—A motion will be made in supreme court here on many for an order vacating the injunction granted on June 20 restraining Hal Chase, the former Chicago American league first baseman, from playing with the Buffalo Federal league club. Notice of the motion and Chase's affidavit in answer to the complaint of the Chicago American league club were filed in the county clerk's office today. In the affidavit, which covers thirty typewritten pages, Chase seeks to show that all his contract relations with the Chicago team were lived up to and that he was a free agent when he sought employment with the Fed-

President Frank J. Farrell of the New York Americans could not be found in his usual haunts when looked for, which gave rise to a rumor that he had left town to negotiate an im-portant trade. Gossip connected Mr. Farrell with an attempt to wean Ty Cobb from Hughle Jennings. Two weeks ago a million dollars would not have bought the Georgia Peach's delease from De-troit. That club might as well have locked its gates as to dispose of the batting king. A change in conditions has resulted, however, from Ty's recent escapade in which he assaulted a butcher and broke his hand in the

DOINGS IN THE AUTO WORLD

Overheating Often Experienced by Tourists in Summer Due to Poor Lubrication-Twice as Many Machines in New York in 1913 as in 1911—Hill Climbing is an Important Factor in Driving.

"When making long tours these hot summer days, trouble is often experienced with overheating," said an autotomobile distributor. The driver is at a loss to know where to look for the source of the trouble. With the prevalent use of the water pump in the circulating system, overheating in the majority of cases is not due to poor circulation of the water, but to faulty lubrication.

"It is interesting to note that the winning car at the Indianapolis 500 mile race averaged $2.47 miles per hour on two gallons of lubricating oil, while another car which finished near the tail end used 35 gallons of oil. It is impossible of course to use such a impossible, of course to use such a quantity of oil effectually in a motor travelling 500 miles, but the striking contrast of the conditions shown by the race indicate clearly the importance that must be paid to the lubricat-ing system of the car.

"The story of lubrication is that's ance that must be paid to the lubricating system of the car.

"The story of lubrication is that a film of oil separates the metalitic surfaces and takes the wear, but if the oil becomes too thin, it is forced out of the bearing too readily, and the metalic surfaces come into intimate contact and are rapidly worn away. It is not enough to apply lubricant indiscriminately to the various chassis parts. It must be done systematically and logically to secure the best results and insure the economical use of the lubricant. The engine is but one point in the car that must be properly ched at all times. It should be a self evident fact that a heavier oil is required in summer than in winter.

England's 600 mile tourist trophy road racing class, won recently predicates a revolution in motor car racing. Taking of second, third and fifth honors by Belgium sliding sleeve cars, probably has wrought the new era in speed contests, according to close allies of the game. Instead of twenty-five or thirty manufacturers each striving to triumph over the other, it will be poppet valve manufacturers and sleeve valve makers arrayed against one another, judged by present indications.

The performance of the three cars shows that the sleeve motors offer the staying qualities required for cars to make good in events like the Indianapolis speedway race.

The ability of a driver is more taxed in ascending hills than in nearly every other phase of driving. Each hill has its own characteristics and the driver ascending it for the first time must bring into play all the knowledge gained from other hill experiences if he wishes to make the ascent with a degree of pleasure to himself and the others in his party.

There is a great deal of deception in ah hills, deception which only wide experience can counteract. When approaching a hill from the level the grade is minimized and often a driver wil have to shift gears and he wonders what is wrong with his motor which heretofore was working perfectly. Later in the day if the driver comes back over the same route he will be surprised at the steep descent and for the first time becomes aware of the fact that he was climbing a steep hill on the outward journey, although he was not aware of it solely because
